

Editorial Comment

Re: "Reasons Other Than Truancy"

Reading the entire article really shows that there is a hole that needs to be closed. We are losing too many of our children to adults who are using them to commit crimes. But most or all of our community should be up in arms that children are being released with little concern for the student and their education. They are the future of our city. New Orleans already has too many who are not literate. These children are potentially being wasted and those charter schools which are without concern for the education of our children are contributing to the illiteracy and crime in our city. Both affect all of us.

Therefore, we must do something about this situation. These are our children, and this is our city and charter schools are receiving public funds. Therefore, we, the public, must speak out about this situation.

Merle T. Harris

Former New Orleans Schools Educator